

2009 Economic Stimulus Act

The recently enacted "American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009" — or more commonly known as the 2009 economic stimulus act — is intended to jump start an economic recovery. It provides a wide range of financial programs aimed at immediate impact to workers and the U.S. economy. The stimulus act contains a wide-ranging tax plan that includes a package of tax incentives to encourage investments in renewable energy projects or more-efficient technologies, tax savings for business, and tax relief for low and moderate-income wage earners, individuals and families with college expenses, and home and car purchasers.
